1. BACKGROUND :

At National and International level efforts are made constantly to achieve quality life and better living. Thousands of programs are on operation to improve living status of people. In many cases spectacular achievements have been made while in many cases programs have failed. The development of society is possible through application of science and technology. We have employed scientific means and ways for development of society but success has not been equal in many cases. Empowerment and Human rights are two noble concepts towards which our efforts are directed, but our achievement in these directions still not very much significant. Now we have to search the reasons of success and failure and to modify our approach accordingly. The present seminar is designed to discuss on these important issues and come out with concrete suggestions to aid those who deal with development leading to empowerment.

2. OBJECTIVES OF THE SEMINAR :

The objectives of the seminar to discuss the issues related to optimum utilization of rural resources with emphasis on present status. Further, the objective is to bring together the ideas of scientists, university experts, field workers, Government and Nongovernment agencies working in various developmental projects and examine their applicability under different situations to enrich our programs. The seminar also aims at documenting the valuable suggestions for the use of development workers and scholars in their respective fields for future improvement.

3. EXPECTED OUTCOME OF THE SEMINAR:

The expected outcome of the seminar is to make documentation of suggestions pertaining to overall concept of managing rural resources and finalize the guidelines on the basis of presented papers for implementation of the development schemes and projects.

4. THEMATIC AREAS:

THEME 1: Skill development, capacity building and use of technology as means of empowerment in developmental fields covering the areas relating to rural resources involving agriculture, animal husbandry, horticulture, fisheries, forestry, environment etc.

THEME 2: Problems of rural youth and how to retain them in village with remunerative enterprise to provide sustainable income, professional growth and social recognition relating to optimum utilization and conservation of rural resources.

THEME 3: Empowerment of women and associated issues with emphasis on home science technology. Use of Indigenous knowledge in home management, and gaps in managerial ability of rural home makers.

THEME 4: Transfer of technology and associated constraints in the areas of overall development and conserving rural resources.

THEME 5: Tribes, their development, success and failure with cause-effect analysis.

5. CALL FOR PAPER:

The delegates are requested to submit papers related to the thematic areas. Abstract within 250 words may be submitted online with very brief indication of title of article, objectives, place of work, sample size and results. The name of author(s) with email and phone number is must. The mode of typing is restricted to MS word in Arial font-12. Full papers following international standard may be submitted after receiving acceptance letter from this end.

We have decided to publish full paper along with abstract and distribute the same during seminar. The quality of paper and suitability will be decided by the experts.

6. ABOUT THE INSTITUTION :

Sikhya-O-Sikhya is one of the leading NGO's which came into inception in 1990 with an aim to serve the society and the socially, economically backward and the neglected groups. During the tenure of 25 years of its existence this organization has been working immensely and tirelessly for the up-liftment of rural poor, urban slum dwellers, unemployed youth and vulnerable sections of the society in many districts of Odisha. The organization has been conducting many Workshops on Leadership programmes, Life Enrichment Education, Health Camps & Research works and Empowerment of Rural women.
